On July 3, 2020 MTV's Caitlin Albers For weeks, Big Brother fans have been trolling each other on social media, but the former player is now getting in on the action. Faysal Fessy Shafaat called his pal and former Big Brother winner Josh Martinez on Instagram live last night and trolled him for his possible appearance on the rumored all-star season hit CBS series. Josh is already a name heavily rumored to be appearing on Big Brother Season 22, along with other former winners like Dan Gheesling and Derrick Levasseur. Fessy may have somewhat confirmed that last night when he asked Josh about the adventure he was about to embark on, holding back a smile as he was up to something. CinemaBlend got to host an Instagram live video, and now Big Brother fandom is going wild. So what's the new man? When do you leave for your little thing? Feci asked Josh with a smile. Josh, appearing confused, asked Feci what he was talking about. The little adventure you have going on, Fessy replied. What kind of adventures are we talking about? Are we talking about the same adventure here? Josh then started laughing and told viewers to watch the stream to not let Fessy troll them. Josh neither confirmed nor denied the rumours, nor did he or Feci even mention Big Brother during their conversation. The pair were recently hanging out in Miami along with some of their Challenge: Complete Madness co-stars, so Fessy may be implicated in some of the big news in Josh's life right now. For the time being, rumors have also suggested Fessy might be joining the All-Stars season, but others believe he will be sticking with the opportunity to go ahead. Fessy will still be strong this season after Josh was eliminated last Wednesday following the loss of Kyle Christie to Purgatory. Other former Big Brother players who are rumored to join Season 22 are Frankie Grande, Da'Vonne Rogers, Janelle Pierzina, Kemi Fakunle, and David Alexander. CBS has not confirmed the all-star rumor, let alone those who will appear on season 22. The show has begun production training and is now awaiting signing from the guilds to begin filming this month. The production will reportedly be relatively COVID-proof, as all health and safety precautions are being implemented. Published: 00:18 BST, 7 August 2020 Updated: 00:40 BST, 7 August 2020 by Josh Martinez from the hugely popular reality game show Big Brother from this round of fun. The Season 19 champion, 26, was suspended from the competition with only days left until the season 22 premiere of the All Stars edition of the show out of an abundance of caution by big-brother producers, after Martinez tested positive for a new That Josh's test was perhaps a false positive, as he repeatedly tested negative for the virus during the two-week sequester period he attended leading up to the show's premiere on Wednesday night. He's out. Josh Martinez's Big Brother is coming out of the season 22 premiere of The All Stars edition of the show, after he tested positive for the novel Coronavirus According to sources of production, despite subsequent test results Josh returns all negative, one positive led the show to the decision to remove him from The Big Brother House, where he certainly had regular and intimate contact with other contestants. On Tuesday, the reality star took to Twitter to break the news of his absence this BB season, and try to set the record straight in terms of his health. There's been a lot of speculation about me being this season's older brother Allstars. I can say I'm not going to be here this season, Martinez tweeted Tuesday morning. According to reports: Josh's test may have been a false positive, as he repeatedly tested negative for the virus in subsequent screenings; Martinez was seen competing on The Show on Tuesday: the reality star took to Twitter to break the news of his absence this BB season, and set the record straight in terms of his health, which he says is the great many rumors have been said in the last few days about me that I couldn't address, but to be clear my health is great. #bb22 Don't believe everything you read online most of the rumors about me were false,' he continued in a subsequent tweet. Honestly, I bummed that I'm not on, but couldn't be more grateful with all the more at CBS for being always so great, supportive, and being a part of completely changing his life for the better. Josh also appeared on his Instagram Story a day later, just before the season premiere, to repeat why he wasn't on the show and assure fans he was only making a fine. 'Sending love': Josh also appeared on his Instagram Story a day later, before the season premiere, to repeat why he wasn't on the show and reassure fans that he was doing very well and while he was relieved of the pre-show sequester early after his positive result returned, Martinez seems healthy and was even spotted in Los Angeles with friends. In its place, an alternative party was introduced to the Big Brother house for the season. And like all productions currently starting backup production, the hit CBS game show has put in place some basic coronavirus safety guidelines and precautions in order to protect both the cast and crew. Replaced alternative: Although he was relieved of the pre-show sequester early after his positive result, Martinez seems healthy and has even been spotted in Los Angeles with friends; Seen here (centre) in season 19 promo shot seen on Instagram: Big Brother champion said he was bummed to be in this season's show ... time will tell if he will participate in Big Brother 19 star Josh Martinez is generally happy-go-lucky and encouraging others to be kind to others, but today, his social media post paid tribute to his grandfather, who recently passed away. He let him know how much he loved his grandfather and how much his family would miss him. Josh Won BB19 When Josh Martinez walked into the house for Big Brother 19, many viewers didn't think it would last long. He was emotional and constantly crying about this or that thing. He seemed too sensitive to play the game, especially with a wild player, Paul Abrahamian. Never in a million years would BB19 fans think that Josh and Paul would team up together. That's just what happened. They were the last two, and for the second year in a row, Paul made it through and lost. Ever since his Big Brother win, he has tried to be a kind and positive voice in the Big Brother community. And he was. It makes a huge difference. just today, his message wasn't as positive as he struggled with the loss of his grandfather. Josh's grandfather died after a long battle with the disease, Martinez's grandfather died after a four-year battle for health. He appeared to be sick in the pictures on Instagram. Josh wrote on Instagram: 'Heaven has found another angel 🙏🏻It's so hard to live without you, but I'm at peace knowing you're no longer suffering, and now you're protecting us from heaven. Thank you for fighting for 4 long years against this terrible disease. I love you so much and I hope that you are proud you can rest in the world grandpa. The last conversation you had with us you told us to continue to live life to the fullest and not be sad, and that's exactly what I will continue to do. I'm grateful for all the lessons you've taught me, and I'm glad you saw me make something out of myself. I love you, and you will always live in our hearts. Until we meet again ❤️ our thoughts and prayers are with Josh and his family. Don't forget to return to Hollywood hiccups for more Big Brother spoilers, news and casting updates! NextComments/OPublished by BornNext Big Brother 19 winner Josh Martinez has competed in two Seasons Of The Challenge. Despite the fact that he has not yet reached the final, he proved that he came to compete. The competitor is back for its third season, Challenge 35: Complete Madness, where he claims he has established himself as a serious physical and social threat in Instagram's question-and-answer. Also, Josh revealed that he opened up about his family struggle for the first time in any of the shows he has appeared on as he wants to inspire those watching. Josh Martinez Sonia Flemming In 2017, then 23-year-old Miami, Florida-based native Josh Martinez, appeared on Big Brother 19. Mistakenly believing he was an early target, the hair care salesman chose immunity for a week on the first chapter of the household his whole team. Over the first few weeks, he got into several heated arguments with several houseguests, including the now married couple Cody and Jessica Nixon. The 23-year-old then aligned with Abbott's Christmas and Big Brother's 18th returnee, Paul Abrahamian. However, he began to notice Paul had used it to get his threats out of the house, and began exposing the returning player to farewell messages to evicted houseguests. Although Josh thought about pouncing on Paul, he never did so and took the musical artist with him to the Final Two. True to his plan, the jury failed to appreciate Paul's many betrayals and gave Josh a 5-4 victory, making him the first Hispanic and minority to win the show. Josh Martinez on The Challenge In February 2019, Josh debuted on mtv's reality show, Challenges: War of the Worlds. Although he was eliminated in the first call, Josh returned as a partner for Amanda Garcia to replace Alan Valdez. They lasted another six rounds before being eliminated for good. He is back for next season, War worlds 2, in Team USA. He was openly opposed to Cara Maria Sorbello and Pauli Calafiore's plan to run the house through alliances and tried to fight against them. The Big Brother champion lasted 13 rounds before being dropped in his first elimination, where Jordan Wisely took him to the training ground. Josh will compete in his third challenge, Total Madness, where he aims to set his threat level as a fierce competitor. Josh Martinez will share personal challenges in The Challenge Season 35 in an Instagram question and answer. Josh explained that he's excited for his followers to see his performance during Total Madness because he thinks he's really shown that physically and socially I'm a threat and a competitive person. The now 26-year-old admitted that he was very anxious and nervous during the season to air because he shared a lot of my personal life that I never shared on the last three shows I did. via Josh Martinez's Instagram Josh went on and explained that this is the most vulnerable he has ever been, but hopes that sharing my family's struggles inspires someone like this would be his biggest blessing. Call: Complete Madness airs April 1, 2020, at 8 p.m. EST on MTV. Mtv.
