But Sue Colley always gets weenie – How's that going, Professor? – Look, Hank, I know you're not exactly what anyone would call an education professional. But my wife went out on a limb for you. What do you think of Jackie? – You're not enough to be her father. – Do you think I'm charming? – Has a woman ever punched you in the face? – You know what? You have to use me. That's where you work? – You want to go inside? – Is it related to seeing you naked? – Oh, definitely. – I suppose not. In the interests of student-teacher relationships, we're all normal and responsible, and – what if in the process, we just kind of get over each other? – What if you tell me about our daughter? – Who are you talking? Tell her you're a full member now. – Fucking hate you. – And I fucking hate you, shit, fool! Queens of the Stone Age you have a killer sense there, man? – Don't want to know you less? – I want to be crushed by your sweet? – What's the difference? We're all going to die? – No, no, no, no. You don't have to do that. Not on my account. Oh, well you see that this is a prime example of what's wrong with the younger generation today. You don't leave anything to the imagination. So you have some? – Some good, big, round? – You know, nothing to excite about? – You know, just? – Yes, haide. – Do you have anything you would like to add? – on the topic? – on this topic, we only discussed. – Oh, that topic. Let me think, well, no, there's something I'd like to say. We're all ears. – Do you think ladies have gone too far with sex-positive feminism? I mean, I know they all say they're down with pornography and shaved pubes and rolling, but do we really think that's the way to release? What do you think? I'm not sure it's the right forum for such a discussion. – Hank, – Well, you asked me. – I just think out loud. Okay, everybody, it will do it for today. – Thank you for coming. – Yes, I'll see you tonight. You too, Hank. English department drop mixer. If you haven't watched Californication, you need to. What a great show. Except for the current season. I don't know if they got new writers or if they just ran out of ideas, but it really went down the hill anyway, you don't read this because you want to know how to be like Hank. So here we go. First of all, a little clip to make your juices flow. Now, fun stuff. I'll break it a few steps to make it easier to connect and criticize. © How to be like Hank – Step 1. Get Deep. This video is key. Watch it nice for fun. Then, once you've cleared yourself, watch it again, but this time, pay a little more attention. Don't get bogged down watching his actions go deep. Not in the eye, it's a bit gay. Not that there's nothing wrong with that. Look beyond his actions, his movements, his giggling. Look at the basic way he engages the world. Does he focus on what she might think of him? Does he focus on what anyone might think of him? He smokes at the supermarket and walks away from a hot chick in a bikini who asks him for advice. Do you think he really doesn't care what anyone else might think of him? The first step in the way Hank is to look past all the actions, movements and style and see that it's Hank's core that matters. He doesn't live his life for anyone but what he wants. He does what he wants, saying what he wants, living the life he wants what he wants. Now, here's the interesting part: if you copy what Hank does so that you're more like him, you'll live your life based on what you want to do and what you believe is right? You're just going to copy someone else. Is Hank copying someone else? It's ironic. The way to be like Hank is to stop trying to be like Hank because Hank isn't trying to be like anyone. To be like Hank, you first have to try to be yourself. You have to let go of what other people think and focus on what you want. Nothing else. How to Be Like Hank – Step 2: Find the Barrier. The next step is to figure out what prevents you from doing what you want. Is it social conditioning? Maybe someone ever did anything that went beyond the social conditioning? Then social conditioning really hinders you? Is this judgment and criticism of others? Then do they really stop you? Do judgments and criticisms of others stop Anatomy de Gardner.pdf It's not these things or anything external. The only person who prevents you from doing what you want and live the Californication dream is you. Social conditioning, judgment, fear, all these things happen in your world and you then decide not to take the action you want. It may seem like they're interfering with you, but it's just the choices you make that hinder you. How to be like Hank – Step 3: Deal with it. It is not fears, doubts, insecurity or judgment that prevent you from becoming the person you want to be. It is you that prevents you from living the life you want. Specifically, it's a decision you make at those key moments when those barriers present themselves. But, you don't make a decision based on anything, you do it for a just that. Because there is a basic layer that is the driving force behind the decisions you make. Would you like to know what it is? Everything is simple – this is your goal. Your goal, as I define it, is how you try to achieve your desired experience of life. If you restrain yourself and run from the judgments of others, then I would suggest that you are trying out some positive emotions (happiness) and the way you are trying to achieve it, it is through escape from the fear and judgments of others. Do you think Hank finds his happiness through getting other people's approval? If you learned how to find your happiness through a path other than trying to make people like you, you'd be more able to live Hank's life. .
